

Derek Cadmus What's plan B if it doesn't?

1

Hide this

- Like Show more reactions
- · Reply
- · 2d

Kelly Przekota Leave the buckets in the hallways to catch the rain leaking through the ceiling, buy more nail polish so the kids can tag more cockroaches and make instagram accounts for them, and everyone wears helmets in the pool areas so the tiles that fall from the ceiling don't hit you and cause head injuries? 🤪🧢 -

2

Hide this

- Like Show more reactions
- · Reply
- · 2d

Kathy Meade Kelly Przekota don't forget the purchase of gas masks for the pool so the kids don't burn their lungs. Maine South has made the local news twice for swimmers being sent to the hospital after being overwhelmed by chlorine fumes. I'd say the new filtration system is long overdue since they've been using the same one since the school was built in the 60s

3

Hide this

- Like Show more reactions
- · Reply
- · 2d
- Edited

Kelly Przekota Oh we already have ours 🧢 -

Hide this

- Like Show more reactions
- · Reply
- · 2d

Kenneth J Migalski Oh, I just read new taxes, absolutely NOT. !!

1

Hide this

- Like Show more reactions
- · Reply
- · 2d

Ashley Hawkes Copy of matt pothast's comment so it's out for everyone to see:

The district is putting $45.7 million toward the renovations. The increase in property taxes would be $91.02/$100,000 of a home's assessed value.

2

Hide this

- Like Show more reactions
- · Reply
- · 2d

Kenneth J Migalski I believe as a society we need to stop with trying to justify all of these 'things' we believe we need. Where are the volunteers who can do all these 'work' in the spirit of 'paying it forward'? With all of the work that needs to be completed, it cannot possibly be dumped on the property tax payers regardless of what you believe needs to be done.

2

Hide this

- Like Show more reactions
- · Reply
- · 2d

Kathy Meade I pay it forward ...by paying my taxes.

1